MARK TWAIN Good day to all you human millennials. The late Mark Twain here once again coming to you live with Suggestions four through six on how you might survive the 21st Century.

Okay, here they are: #4) “Earth will go on just fine without Humans.”, #5) “No New Nukes are Good Nukes” and #6) “Get Real with Real Farms and Real Food”.

Okay Suggestion Number Four, “The Earth will go on just fine without Humans.” Put simply, nobody is going to fix the human made messes on Earth for you ‘all.... ..You ‘all got to do that for yourselves... ..and before the human race can move forward as a race you all must start respecting the other animals on the planet and the planet itself. You really do here. Cold divine truth is; in God’s eyes, humans are not above any other life on the Earth, Humans just happen to have thumbs that allow them to make tools. God’s version of “equal but different.” Um,hm.

Okay now, another truth is that there is a reason why two-thirds of the earth is ocean – and you humans presently treat the ocean like its one big gigantic combination of a septic tank and garbage dump, and toppies are still today drilling new holes on the ocean’s bottom with leaking and stinking mega-oil refineries well after your addiction to oil could have already been terminated with the technology already in place and ready for development in the 1970’s... .. and how’s that working for you? Hmm? Not good bottom ninety niner’s, just ‘cause your leaders have the guns of oil companies and toppie polluters aimed right at your faces, enabling toppie corporations to make really bad choices when it comes to the oceans, doesn’t mean you all have to go along with it. Sure guns and money can empower a bully and make that bully feel mighty tall for a moment or two – but any man with a pistol who shoots a Grizzly Bear is just gonna make that bear mad – and then that bear is gonna eat 'em. Nature and the ocean are kind of like one big old Grizzly bear if you think about it and if you humans keep letting the toppies rile up nature and the oceans up the way they are, nature herself is going come back hard and wipe you all out – sort of Nature's own survival of the truly fittest. My suggestion for you all is to start actually loving and caring for the Earth for real – instead of dying as a species while you all let the toppies pretend that their oil, coal production and nuclear power actions are “green” and “earth friendly”. Your purchased leaders need to get their greedy little hands out of the toppies purses here and you all got to lead them in the direction to do so. Your current world-wide Carbon Credit Money Exchange is just one-more ponzy scam of the top one percent casting all you 99 percenters as fools while their fake-carbon stock market generates mega-profits for the mega-corporations who are making all the carbon waste in the first place. You bottom ninety nine percenters are the ones who truly will pay the final bill in the end – sure as your born here.

Okay, Suggestion number Five “Building New Nuclear Bombs is Just Plain Stupid.” This idea is the toppies latest and most dangerous manifestation of their hubris – like I said last time we talked – sometimes the toppies would rather play war than play nice – and playing war with new nuclear bombs is toying with the painful and horrific demise of your race... ...the toppies desire for brand-new spiffy and sleek drone piloted atomic-bombs in submarines and in the skies will end up flying right onto your home turfs. Better for you all to stop this before it starts – stop in right now, dead in it's tracks before it makes your race dead in its tracks. You 99 percenters need to stop the Leaders of Russia, China, Iran, North Korea and the US of A now. These leader's egos and hearts are choked full of self-hating hubris. God can't stop them and the Earth is grieving as they build their new nukes and better built toppies-only nuclear bomb shelters. One new nuclear hubris plan is to secretly transport, by drone submarine, some brand new 21st century nuclear bombs that will instantly turn most your human tribes into charcoal briquettes. There are better ways to reduce the human population and share resources than that. Much better.

And, after those brand new bombs fly, God will be sad for all of you, God will be deeply disappointed in the toppers who made it all happen... ..but no big deal to Mother Earth. Nuclear ashes to ashes and human dust to dust. In a few blinks of God's eyes (or 55,000 years in human time) the earth will recover sans humans, and the birds will fly free again and the salmon will swim up-river again and the Potomac and great lakes will be, well, great again. Again without humans and 55,000 years down the road – give or take a century. See how God and the Universe work you 'all? As I said at the top of this, "You humans can kill yourselves off but "The Earth will go on just fine without you!"

You see, when God woke up this morning you humans were just starting to walk erect, showing real promise as you started to forge tools with your wonderful little brains and your busy little thumbs. How quickly things went south (no pun intended) when early humans found out that can turn any tool into a weapon and then found out that it is sometimes mighty fun to use a weapon to kill other humans. Easy and quick too. And you 99 percenters are teaching your childing how to do it in massive numbers right here and right now! The number one use of America's computer power and computer memory in the world is dedicated to shoot-em-up war game simulations that idiot parents give to their children. Video games that program children to become a killers for the toppers. So sad, and these parents don't have a clue as to how dangerous it is. Those X'Boxes and other killer machine making toys are founded on the hubris of and generating horrific profits for the very top one percenters who are propagating World War Three right this minute you all... ..in the 1930's, with a gun and a scope you humans could kill each other without ever getting a drop of blood on your perfect uniforms. Best part was you could be sneaky too... ..hide far away so that nobody knew who did the killing at 'tall. And now with drones, well, your killing is just a video game played by the kids you programmed, only these kids are now adults, playing their real war computer game in a safe-house bunker in Nevada, or Utah, killing for real, by land and air and water anywhere on the globe while watching it all on their video monitors... ..never seeing, smelling, or hearing the screams of their actual victims. And get real you all – all the war around your planet right this moment is about oil and land, and water, which your toppers are abusing and using up just like they use and abuse all their un-aware little bottom 99 percent warrior minions here. Yes, the toppies know that just like their tools, their young humans can be molded into a tool or a weapon – and right now they are choosing a society of human weapons and human victims in their top one percent game of world chess here. // No Matter... ..whether you personally believe in evolution or creationism, or you don't believe in any divine power at 'tall, it just doesn't matter. Let Nuclear World War Three happen and... ..the earth will recover without humans and human shenanigans in about three winks of God's eyes. You see, God put you all here to be guardians of the Earth not to let you play God while on the Earth.

If I was one of the “bottom 99 percenters” alive right this moment, today, well, I'd be emailing all my representatives telling them to tell Washington DC that I do not support funding any new nuclear bombs at 'tall. And, I'd send those emails, well, sooner than later.

Okay now, now for some positives ideas... ..Devine Suggestion Number Six: “Rebuild a 300 Acre Locally Owned Farming System” and also build some high-tech high-rise organic farms too. // Yep, you got to find a way to get locally owned organic 300 acre farms going again. No unsafe-pesticides, no more genetically altered foods, no more mega farms and mega-cold storage of not-yet-ripe genetically altered fake-foods. Trucking thawed out old food from mega factories out of state or out of country and plopping that poison onto your childrens' tables is just bad thinking all around. Time for more farmers and less top 1% fake food robber barons. Time for each of you to make it happen you'all and it's got to happen soon. And yes, you can take a millennials approach to this solution too! Why, techies at your best colleges are already working on ways to grow crops in glass enclosed skyscraper towers that use solar energy to heat and feed the plants 365 days a year even in sub-zero climates – sort of like growing food in space! And these same skyscraper farms can condense moisture from the air and recycle the water and release oxygen into the atmosphere too. With windows and doors screened in these Skyscraper towers you 'all won't need pesticides to keep the bad bugs out! Yummy clean food, fast and consistent in sky scraper towers... ..how bout that?

Now, if you like the country life then why not decide to start your own, 10, 20, 50 or even 300 acre old-fashioned outdoor farm with real seeds and plants? Find a farmer's almanac from the early 1900's and you will find all kinds of natural ways to fertilize soil and keep pests away without chemicals. Yes, natural works best so you all got to phase out all genetically modified food seeds, trees and plants too. Replace them as fast as you can with nature designed organics. Do the research with each other and figure out how to find and plant real food with real seeds – instead of the Monsanto seed mutations being pushed by the pesticide companies to make the plants strong against poisonous weed killers and in a way that makes all your food too dangerous for human consumption. Once again the “topples” are going to kill you here if you let them. Get busy and get real on this one. Put away your cell phone and pick up a shovel and start planting your future in real food. You under 30's are bright and willing to work, but many of you are unemployed or working for peanuts anyway, so why not start planting some real peanuts, or real beans, or wheat, or barley, or natural corn, or soy beans or a thousand other protein producing plants for a real food future for humanity instead? // What have you got to lose here? Get with it, buy, rent or steal some land and start planting. And I don't mean medical marijuana. Then set up food stands near you and sell your real produce fresh. Grow summer crops in summer, winter crops in winter and learn to live with waiting for the season and appreciating what is in season! Heck, people in America are dying to eat real food – literally, and they're getting sick and dying from eating fake mega-factory food too. Do this now before it's too late. Grow real food instead of fake food. Hmm,hm – get real with this one. // Hey you' all, these three suggestions are just the tip of the iceberg here... ..next time we address maga-meat production and the hell in tarnation it has created for animals and workers across the USA and the globe...

Okay – enough for today. You be safe and be the candle not the darkness today, you hear? Until Next Time, I'm the Late Mark Twain telling you to get real, stop labeling, and start doing something nice for yourself, your families and the world. See you next Time! You Take Care now, you hear me?
